

PROJECT MANAGEMENT TRAINING SERVICES

A SOLUTION OFFERING FOR CORPORATE & ENTERPRISE

Auxilion is a Registered Education Provider with the Project Management Institute delivering training services in association with the Centre for Project Management at the University of Limerick.

The importance of Project Management as a management discipline in today's business environments is acknowledged globally. Holding an appropriate credential not only gives formal recognition to this importance, but also indicates that a best practice methodology and framework are in place to consistently enable successful projects. And more and more today, formal accreditation is regarded as an absolute prerequisite.

Our training services are delivered in association with the Centre for Project Management at the University of Limerick (Ireland). This is a constituent unit of the Kemmy Business School and is a centre of excellence which specialises in Project Management education and training programmes.

It is the synergy between the academic rigour of the University of Limerick and our own practical experience of successfully managing projects that makes our training programmes so successful, and we draw on the most experienced practitioners from both University of Limerick and Auxilion to ensure the highest possible standards. Both Auxilion and the Centre for Project Management are Registered Education Providers with the Project Management Institute®.
